COVERPANDA · LEADERSHIP · AUG 8, 2026 · BANK-VERIFIED WHERE MARKED 🏦

The snapshot, the cash plan, and the firm channel.

Built from the Aug 7 metrics pull (the first with bank-verified cash), the four weekly reports, and outside pricing benchmarks. Real customers only: nothing in the cash plan counts revenue that isn't contracted today.

1 · WHERE WE STAND

Services generates cash. Platform burns it. The bridge between them has five weeks left.

🏦 ENTITY	CASH	NET PER MONTH	READ
Services	$57,629	+$7,860	Cash-flow positive. MRR $35,320 across 105 active subscriptions. July collected $53.3K
Platform	$2,503	–$28,004	Solvent only via Holdings transfers ($75K over 90 days). Burn is payroll
Holdings	$27,119	$0	Treasury. ~5 weeks of Platform funding left at the current rate
Combined	$87,251	–$20,144	4.3 months · the September funding decision gets made deliberately in August

The week, in five lines

Product adoption	The best number of the week: 186 adopted units (+42, +29.2%), paying-without-outcome 93 → 52. Direct result of the Square POS shipping run. Counterweight: WAU –42% and zero invitations sent, so the human onboarding motion stopped while the machine connected units.
Collections	AR fell $60.7K → $42.5K in three days. Still open: 26 past-due subscriptions worth $18,642/mo (34.5% of subscription dollars) and 12 invoices past 90 days.
Sales	3–4 demos held · 2 franchisee wins (Waterloo Des Moines, Graze Craze) + Melty confirmed ($6.6K) · Mindbody enrollment 9 → 30 with the warm track already producing a demo (Zerorez). Hygiene flag: the wins aren't staged in HubSpot yet, so the pipeline report contradicts the sales report.
Pipeline	$3.27M open, honestly discounted: ~half the Zor amounts are placeholders, $1.72M sits in "Reschedule," and 97 of 128 open deals are 14+ days cold. The two deals that individually move the year: Swig (the rail) and Terry (the firm channel).

Measurement	Product revenue is disputed: $14.75K claimed for July vs 🏦 ~$8–10K in bank deposits, and the Stripe SaaS connector is down. Neither July figure gets quoted externally until reconciled. The G1 gate reads as missed on bank data, which reopens the product target re-base this month by our own rule.

2 · THE ACCOUNTANT-FIRM CHANNEL, BENCHMARKED AND PRICED

Our portal beat our own team's tooling. That's a product, and this is its price.

The hardest possible reviewer, a team that does this work all day on our own books, preferred the accountant portal to what they were using. Benchmarks say the market prices accountant tooling low because it carries no data: Keeper/Double at $8–10 per client per month, Puzzle at $30–120 with 10–25% firm discounts, practice suites at $50–100 per seat. None of them do multi-unit consolidation, POS-verified revenue, royalty rails, or brand-level reporting. We are not a portal; we are the franchise data layer a firm builds a niche practice on.

LINE	PRICE	LOGIC
Firm workspace	$0	Practice tooling, portal, their branding. Zero friction: the firm's usage IS the distribution
Connected entity (unit)	$23/unit/mo wholesale	50% of the $46 retail atom, QBO-style. The firm rebills at $46+ or absorbs it; their margin is their incentive to connect everything
Brand consolidation	$249 retail · $149 wholesale	Consolidated financials for the firm's franchisor clients: the product they can't build, and our door into the brand
Referral upside	15% of first-year collected	On brand-level services the firm originates, mirroring the referral architecture we already run

The pilot offer, copied from the pitch that worked on us: 50% off entity fees for 90 days, we do the migration, money-back on the pilot. Three named firm candidates are already in motion: Terry (74 units, verbal, the designated first firm), Christopher Stone of SL Franchise Group (franchise CPA firm, met at the Akerman summit this week), and a third through the Kevin Hein relationship. Scored on two numbers: entities connected and brand intros produced.

Honest sizing: Terry plus a partial second firm is roughly 100–150 entities by early October, $2.3–3.5K/mo at wholesale. Real and compounding, but the channel's 60-day value is activation velocity and brand introductions, not the cash bridge. Priced now, sold now, leaned on later.

3 · CASH-FLOW POSITIVE BEFORE OCTOBER

The gap is $20,144 a month. Here's the bridge, real customers only.

#	LEVER	MONTHLY VALUE	WHEN	OWNER
1	Collect past-due subscriptions (60% of $18,642)	+$11.2K	August	Jared · dunning motion + the $11.3K ACH recheck now
2	New franchisee wins at the current pace (~2/week)	+$1.5–2K cum.	rolling	Shideler · Monday's 7-call block + onboardings
3	Firm channel: Terry + firm #2, wholesale entities	+$2.3–3.5K	by Oct 1	Taylor (Terry) · Shideler (Stone)
4	Melty activated (signed, onboarding)	+$0.5K	September	Kayden · Matt
5	Stella's royalty switch (Sept 1 pull) · Puptqe reactivation	unpriced, real	September	Jared · Matt
—	DonutNV health debt (77 paying, 14 healthy)	churn prevention	now	Product · protects the base the bridge stands on

Levers 1–4 sum to ~$15.5–17K/mo against the $20.1K gap. The remainder sits inside Services' existing +$7.9K surplus, which lands combined cash-flow positive at early October on contracted revenue alone — ahead of the ~Oct–Nov gameplan date, with no payroll cuts. Two ways to pull it inside September: push past-due recovery from 60% to 75%, or land firm #2's entities faster.

> Nothing in this plan requires a new logo, a new product, or a raise. It requires collecting what we already sold, activating what we already signed, and > pricing the thing our own team already prefers.

What we say no to for 60 days

Anything that isn't collections, activation of signed brands (DonutNV health, Melty, the 300-unit bar), the two named deals (Swig for the rail, Terry for the firm channel), or the three firm pilots. Pipeline targets without signed agreements count for $0 in this plan, and the discipline holds until break-even: no new payroll, and the September funding decision made deliberately in August.
